

2016 ACLS OB Materials Price List

Welcome to ACLS OB 2016! The ACLS OB team is pleased to announce the arrival of new materials. As always, feedback from Instructors about content and operational design has been helpful.

Content: We continue to give careful consideration to the feedback provided by ACLS OB Instructors. All content has been updated to reflect the 2015 science guidelines (Provider/Instructor manuals, and new maternal code video). Additionally, content has been expanded to include:

- a. ILCOR and AHA science – content reflecting the science along with the GRADE recommendations
- b. “Check Yourself” sections – highlighting the most critical content of each section
- c. Hands-on practice – time built into the agenda and scenarios provided
- d. Talking With Families – updated cases and content

The ACLS OB Provider Course now has an Instructor/Student ratio of 1:8, in order to accommodate learners and the practice time.

NOTICE TO INSTRUCTORS: All previous ACLS OB material is outdated and must be replaced with the 2016 ACLS OB materials by 12/31/2016. No classes may be taught after this date without using the new content, materials, and manuals. All classes must be taught in accordance with the material as written in the Instructor Manual.

Reminders:

1. Facilities and health systems continue to have the option of purchasing a group of ACLS OB Provider manuals and “library-ing” them. This means manuals can be checked out by employed participants prior to class and returned to your facility’s library at the end of class. This is allowable because employees have the option of contacting an Instructor with questions that occur following the completion of class and/or accessing the library of manuals.
Note: ACLS OB Instructors who are ‘independent’ and teach in a variety of hospitals/health systems must provide a manual for each participant to keep (as these participants will not have ongoing access to a library supply of materials).
2. Bulk discounts are still available.
3. St. Luke’s Health System makes Provider Manuals available for purchase only to those participants who attend the ACLS OB Provider class and Instructor Manuals only to documented ACLS OB Instructors.
